

CCESL STUDENT SCHOLARS POSITION DESCRIPTION

Center for Community Engagement to advance Scholarship and Learning and DU Grand Challenges

AY 2025-2026

The Center for Community Engagement to advance Scholarship and Learning (CCESL) understands community engagement to be an approach to academic work emphasizing collaborative, mutually beneficial community partnerships for community impact.

CCESL Student Scholars are students who want to learn more about the social justice issues that matter to them, how to apply their academic learning to those issues, and develop concrete skills and tools for making change in partnership with communities. CCESL Student Scholars contribute to a community-engaged project led by DU faculty or staff. Scholars collaborate to provide support to the project, gaining hands-on community-engaged experience and receiving mentorship from Community-Engaged Fellows (graduate/advanced undergraduate students). As Scholars Think.Connect.Act.Reflect on social justice issues, undertake community-engaged work, and engage in reflection with peers, they contribute to DU Grand Challenges (DUGC), a university-wide initiative that brings together community and university change-makers to address complex public problems and advance the DUGC vision of a world in which all communities thrive. Student Scholars will celebrate and share accomplishments at the end of Spring Quarter.
